Of the few contests of this kind that have been held, all have proved attractions. To a banker especially it is a great sight to see three or four experts working on the safe of a rival company with large hammers, dynamite and burglars' tools, trying to open it in the shortest time possible. Although each of the companies claims that its safe is burgiar proof, there has never been one that has not been opened in the contests by the experts of the rival companies, though it has taken over an hour to open some of them. The place for holding the contest has not been secured.
